Paid Surveys – Where the Real Money is

By Nikki Taylor

Many people are interested in paid surveys, and I'm not surprised. The lure of earning money from home, sat in your pyjamas, while getting paid to give your opinions is very enticing.

But a less well known aspect of paid surveys is something known as the "focus group".

So what exactly is this thing called the focus group? Let me tell you:

A focus group is where a group of people (most commonly between 5 and 10) are brought together to be asked questions, much like a group paid survey. The questions are often just like an interview. The advantages for the company is that they can get accurate information from a group of consumers very quickly, which is perfect for running market tests. The advantage to you, is that you can get paid quite a lot of money for not much work.

Paid focus groups are often paid several hundred dollars per person just for a few hours work. The ones that pay the best are usually the ones that require your physical attendance. Although you can take part in focus groups over the telephone, and even over the internet through a chat room.

Sometimes during these focus groups you will be asked to fill out surveys. Some companies will pay you for each survey you fill out, much like online paid surveys. If you're a fast worker, and given enough surveys, you could work up quite a pay check.

But the drawback of these lucrative focus groups is getting invited to them. It can take quite a bit of hard work, or quite a bit of luck to get one.

So in conclusion, keep your eye out for focus group opportunities as well as paid survey opportunities. It can be hard finding the focus groups at first, but they can be much more lucrative than simply doing the online paid surveys. Of course, it all depends on how much extra money you want to earn. For many people, the hassle of joining a focus group isn't worth it. If all you want is an extra $50 a month, you may prefer to stick with paid surveys online.

Anyway, I hope this has been able to shed some light on another profitable area related to paid surveys.

By Dane J Stanton

It's easy to get paid to take surveys these days now that there are so many companies using the internet as a means of working out customer's wants and needs. There are many ways to go about getting involved with paid surveys, but one of the best ways to get paid to take surveys, would be to join one of the many paid survey sites on the internet.

How Can They Help Me?

If you want to get paid to take surveys and I mean actually get paid cold hard cash, then you are going to have to join one of the many sites on the internet. These sites can connect you to many of the available places on the internet where paid surveys are being run. These paid survey sites offer an extensive range of different paid survey sites listed in their databases. They also give you details of what's incorporated in each one of these sites so that you can save a lot of time and effort so you can get paid to take surveys right from the very get go.

What Else Do These sites offer?

Most of these sites offer some great bonuses. Most sites offer great customer support so that they can guide you through the process of being invited into paid surveys. They tell you everything you need to know including what information you should submit to certain sites, as well as informing you of the best sites to start with. Some sites even offer a piece of software that enables you to track down and submit your information to many sites at once, which will inevitably save you a lot of time and that will also allow you to be invited into more paid surveys. If you want to get paid to take surveys then joining one of these sites is a must.

What Chance Do I Have to Get Paid to Take Surveys If I'm Not A Member At One Of These Sites?

Well let me start by telling you what you will need to do if you want to go through this process manually. First of all you will have to research and hunt down all of these sites yourself and because many of these sites aren't listed in the search engines, you won't be able to find them. In fact you will be missing out on a great deal of opportunities to get paid to take surveys. Put in short, there is nothing to stop you from finding your own paid survey sites, it just is going to take you a heck of a lot longer!

Whatever you decide to do, I wish you the best of luck and I hope to hear some of your successes in the future. Remember you can get paid to take surveys, but it will take some time and effort to make some serious money if that is what you wish to achieve.

How To Get Started With Paid Surveys

By Nikki Taylor

Many people send me e-mails and ask me "what's the easiest way to get started with paid surveys?"

And today I'm going to tell you what I tell them.

You don't need to buy anything to get started with paid surveys. There's a lot of advertising out there that's very enticing to the person who wants to earn a lot of money from doing nothing more than filling out a survey. The people who write this advertising know what to say to push your buttons.

But to get started, all you need is a computer, an internet connection, and an e-mail account.

The first thing I say people should do is head over to Google and search for free paid survey directories. Once you've picked a few free paid survey sites to sign up to, you're probably receive a survey within a month (or less, usually)... assuming you have filled out your profile fully and correctly.

With this first survey you should earn a couple of dollars (it could be less), but more importantly, you'll be able to see if this is something you really want to invest your time in.

Once you get a feel for how paid surveys work, you will be able to decide if you want to do this regularly. If you enjoy it, and think the rewards are worth the time it takes you... then you may want to find a good paid survey database, or search for more free paid survey sites (just be careful of the scams out there).

It will take time to see a lot of surveys regularly. It will also take some effort. But I'm sure you will think it's worth it when you have that extra few hundred dollars a month. But it won't come without effort, okay? Don't be misled by claims of easy money.

10 Online Survey Tips to Keep You Safe!

By Veronica Dubak

Interested in taking online surveys but not sure if you should? Here some tips that will help keep your personal information safe, and will help you reap the rewards of being an online surveys panelist.

1. Register only with online survey panels that list a privacy policy on their website
2. Look for panels approved by the Better Business Bureau (BBB) and that have privacy policies reviewed by TRUSTe or features the WebTrust for Online Privacy Seal of Assurance.
3. Beware of "survey websites" asking you to receive information for special offers and other survey panels during registration - these websites may sell your name and information to other companies that will send you spam.
4. Always set up a separate e-mail account exclusively for survey invitations. This will make it easier for you to see how many surveys you have received, and will avoid spam being sent to your personal e-mail address, should you make a mistake and register with an un reputable surveys website.
5. Beware of "survey websites" that ask for overtly personal information such as your bank account information, credit card numbers, full names of family members, etc. A real online market research company would never ask you to provide this type of information.
6. Be cautious of "get rich quick" websites. You cannot get rich taking online surveys. However, you can make a decent amount of cash on the side participating in surveys.
7. Legitimate online survey e-mail invitations will provide information on the type of study being conducted, the survey length, and the incentive for completion. Do not respond or click on e-mail "survey invitations" that feature ads to win products, cash, etc. These e-mails are not coming from legitimate market research companies!
8. Some research companies will ask you to download software after registration. This software usually tracks your web browsing habits and the information is then sent to marketers. It is ok to download this software if you can verify a legitimate market research firm is running the site - do your homework to make sure that this is indeed the case.
9. Look for mentions of marketing association memberships on survey panel websites. Reputable associations include CASRO (Council of American Survey Research Organizations) and the AAPOR (American Association for Public Opinion Research).
10. Your opinion counts! Marketers truly are interested in what you think, enough to reward you with cash and prizes just for sharing your thoughts. Stay cautious when registering with online survey panels, but when you've found a reputable panel - have fun and reap the rewards of being a panellist!

3 Tips For Increasing Your Paid Survey Earnings

By Nikki Taylor

Paid surveys are a great way to earn a few extra dollars each month, for doing nothing more than giving your opinion on something.

But if you really want to rake in the dollars, then you'll need to know a few crucial tips and techniques to maximize the income you make from paid surveys.

With this in mind, I'd like to share with you a few powerful tips that can increase the amount you make from paid surveys, and increase the amount of paid surveys you receive.

The first tip – and this is a crucial one – make sure you take every single survey that you are sent. Even if it isn't for much money, and even if the topic isn't of much interest to you.

Why do I suggest this? Simple. I've noticed something with the new accounts I've made with paid survey companies... and it's this: Accounts that regularly fill out surveys (nearly ever one sent) tend to get more survey invitations. I think this is because the survey companies see that you're regularly partaking in surveys with good quality answers.

On to my next tip. Take your surveys as soon as you receive them. Now you don't necessarily have to be glued to your PC 24/7, but when you see a survey invitation in your inbox... try and take it as soon as you can.

The survey companies will know that you've clicked the link, so they know how much time passed between sending the email and you taking the survey. Obviously, they get results quicker if you take the surveys quicker. This will definitely put you in their "good books".

My final tip: Make sure you're using a good auto-fill software program. This can save you lots of tedious work of entering the same information over and over again. I personally like the program called Robo form, because it allows me to save multiple details, and enter them very quickly. But this isn't a free program.

If you can't afford Robo form just yet, then there are many great free programs like the Google toolbar which have auto-fill capabilities.

I hope these three tips will help you earn some more money with paid surveys, even if it is just a few extra bucks a month.
